

Parent Empowerment

Supporting Our Children's Educational Journey

a conversation with

Geneva Gay, Ph.D.

Professor of Education at the University of Washington-Seattle

Dr. Geneva Gay is nationally and internationally recognized for her research and writing on multicultural education, ethnic identity, culturally responsive teaching, curriculum design, staff development, and the intersections of race, ethnicity, teaching, and learning. She is widely published including: At the essence of learning: Multicultural education (1994) and the award winning Culturally responsive teaching: Theory, practice, and research (2000). She is also co-editor of Expressively Black: Cultural Basis of Ethnic Identity.

Wednesday, March 5, 2008

6:00 pm - 8:30 pm

Buffalo Academy for Visual and Performing Arts
450 Masten Avenue

 Free and Open to the Public ***

REGISTER with Tamara at 878-3008.

Join community parents/guardians and educators for a buffet dinner and conversation about educational access, expectations, and success.

Co-Sponsored by: Buffalo State College School of Education, University at Buffalo Graduate School of Education, & Langston Hughes Institute

