

Culturally Responsive Teaching: Rethinking Teacher Education

a presentation by

Dr. Geneva Gay

Professor of Education at the University of Washington-Seattle

Wednesday, March 5, 2008

8:30 am - 12:00 noon

Campus West School Auditorium
on the Buffalo State College campus

Dr. Gay is nationally and internationally recognized for her scholarship on multicultural education, ethnic identity, culturally responsive teaching, curriculum design, staff development, and the intersections of race, ethnicity, teaching, and learning. She is the recipient of numerous awards celebrating her distinguished research. Dr. Gay serves on several national editorial review and advisory boards, and provides national and international consultations on multicultural education. She is widely published including: At the essence of learning: Multicultural education (1994) and the award winning Culturally responsive teaching: Theory, practice, and research (2000).

Registration free but limited to 250 participants

TO REGISTER

www.gse.buffalo.edu/eon/continuinged/k12.asp

Questions Call: (716) 645-2455 x1143

Sponsored by: Buffalo State College School of Education and University at Buffalo Graduate School of Education. Additional support for this program is provided by the US Department of Education, Office of Special Education Programs.